for the first heaven and the first earth
had passed away, and the sea was no more.

And not only now let us seem to believe and give heed, when we are admonished by the elders; but also when we take our departure home, let us remember the commandments of the Lord, and not be allured back by worldly lusts, but let us often and often draw near and try to make progress in the Lord's commands, that we all having the same mind may be gathered together for life. For the Lord said, I come to gather all nations [kindreds] and tongues. This means the day of His appearing, when He will come and redeem us— each one according to his works. And the unbelievers will see His glory and might, and, when they see the empire of the world in Jesus, they will be surprised, saying, Woe to us, because You were, and we knew not and believed not and obeyed not the elders (Isaiah 66:18) who show us plainly of our salvation. – St. Clement

Who is the shepherd?

Then I, John, saw a new heaven and a new earth. The former heaven and the former earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. I also saw the holy city, a new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Behold, God's dwelling is with the human race. He will dwell with them and they will be his people and God himself will always be with them as their God. He will wipe every tear from their eyes, and there shall be no more death or mourning, wailing or pain, for the old order has passed away."

Christians are sometimes referred to as 'People of the Promise.' The Easter Season is a wonderful time to focus on what that means.

Throughout Old Testament history we hear the promises made to Israel's leaders. God made specific promises to Abraham, Jacob, Joseph and Moses as well as others.

Abraham would have descendants as numerous as the stars of the sky. Jacob received a similar promise. Joseph had dreams that indicated his future ennoblement. He had not direct assurance that it would happen, yet lived a life of patient endurance sustained by his belief in the promises of God made to his fathers. Even in the midst of struggles Joseph lived uprightly and he came to save his father, brothers, and his people. Moses received the promise of freedom in a land flowing with milk and honey.

These are but shadows and precursors to the ultimate promise that David would receive. God told him through the Prophet Nathan that his house and kingdom would endure forever and that his throne would be established forever.

In the coming of Jesus, the One who would do all in accord with His Father's will we receive the finality of all of God's promises. Jesus' promises to us relate to the far future and to present life on earth. Some are conditioned upon our placing our faith in him and some on other conditions such as obedience, prayer, and humility.

John saw the promise of the kingdom, what it would really be like for the faithful. This isn't a promise given to everyone, but to those who are the baptized faithful, the ones who stand strong in doing Jesus' will. For those who, even in the struggle, keep their focus on God. We can rejoice in that promise. That beautiful kingdom, that New Jerusalem, is ours in the ages to come.

The key is to keep our eyes on the prize, on the promised Jerusalem (not the earthly one). Jesus left us with the command (one which can be a struggle). That is, we are to love one another as He loved us. It can be difficult at times, it can require will power and the courage to forgive – but in the end so well worth it.

And my God will supply every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus.

Basket Social Thank You

Our 14th Annual Basket Social was a great success. Thank you to all who attended and our deepest apologies to those who could not get in because we reached the room's capacity. Our thanks to the Rotterdam Senior Citizens Center for the use of their facilities and a special thank you to all the generous donors who prepared baskets, those who prepared and worked, cooked, and pitched in. A new record of 116 baskets were put up for auction. We raised over $800 over the prior year's total with a grand total of $7,535. God is great!!!!

Memories of Thankfulness

In a conversation one of my clergy friends engaged in, the changes in our practice of our faith, especially the personal ones, entered into the discussion. One of the participants said that not that long ago it was the almost never forgotten custom to offer thanksgiving to God for special events in one's life (birthdays, anniversaries, births, business successes, marriages, blessings of all kinds) by attending Holy Mass. It was a normal part of the Catholic life. I know it was for my family. However, in our present time, this seems to have grown out of style among many. Seemingly, like the 10 lepers in the Gospel story, only one of ten Christians comes to Holy Mass (the greatest act of thanksgiving) on these important days, or to honor these special events and blessings by offering Holy Mass. Too many other activities at these times seem to take precedence. Is this a sign that we have forgotten where these gifts come from, or that God is less present in our lives? Hopefully not! We have much to be thankful for

Something Special for Grayson

Today we welcome Grayson in a special series of ceremonies. When an emergency baptism takes place a child is not later re-baptized but is brought to church where the ceremonies omitted in the emergency situation are provided. God bless Grayson on this special day!
